Craft a rough project plan for how you will accomplish each milestone and task, what your project work schedule will look like, etc.

I plan on working alone, I think probably over something that deals with either cancer research or something to do with startups. I think the startup information is harder to acquire than the cancer information. As for hitting milestones, I plan on attempting to be done with the milestone a week prior as it gives me time to think if my answers are correct. My project work schedule might be difficult to pin down as I have a full-time job, a side job, and a side project for a nonprofit that I'm working all at the same time. I plan on making time though by dedicating as much empty space as I can towards the project.

Identify another project (group or individual) to perform your Milestone 2 Peer Review

I am having issues with teams, it just stopped running, and when I try to log in, I just get the loading screen until I force quit. But I will find a team once I figure out what is wrong with my teams to see if I can't get them to look at my project.
